The Motif Index strives to cover all motifs, whether they show up in Märchen, [fairy tales] legends, or myths. Thompson also intended the Motif Index to cover motifs from all over the world, as the following quote from his introduction demonstrates: 'Outside of Europe, however, Arne's [Tale Type] index is of little use.'

To give some idea of the size of the basic Motif Index, the largest single volume of the six-volume set is the 893-page index to the Index. This is the essence of the Motif Index, but folklore is not a static science, and newly found tales, and variations of existing tales, are continually being unearthed, and these often include previously unrecorded motifs.
