Articulating Design Decisions Communicate with ...

Talking to people about your designs might seem like a basic skill, but it can be difficult to do efficiently and well. And, in many cases, how you communicate about your work with stakeholders, clients, and other non-designers is more critical than the designs themselves—simply because the most articulate person usually wins.

Articulating Design Decisions [Book]

You only have “he said, she said” and a bunch of rehashed conversations. When design decisions are made verbally in a meeting, it can be nearly impossible to remember later why decisions were made.” — Tom Greever, Articulating Design Decisions: Communicate with Stakeholders, Keep Your Sanity, and Deliver the Best User Experience

Articulating Design Decisions Quotes by Tom Greever

Putting something into your design for the purpose of giving stakeholders something to say no to is known as “painting a duck.” Articulating Design Decisions was used as a required text in the graduate Design Management program at the Shintaro Akatsu School of Design at the University of Bridgeport

Articulating Design Decisions: Communicate with ...

Articulating Design Decisions is a must have book for anyone in the creative field, I'd even argue that people who are solely developers, and rarely touch designs should read it too. Tom has done an excellent job in tackling the issues that we all face when explaining our choices to our clients and the rest of the team.

Taking this approach to design creates meetings that are more productive, decisions that are well-tuned to users' needs, and a team that is set up for success. In addition, it will help designers to articulate their design decisions, communicate with stakeholders, keep their sanity, and still deliver the best user experience.

Great Designers are Great Communicators | UX Booth

Recently I attended a JAM London workshop hosted by Tom Greever on articulating design decisions. As a recent newcomer to field of product design, I've been feeling an absence of confidence amongst my peers. It's been well told that a key skill of any designer is the ability to communicate.
